Departure

In addition to the keynote speakers the Conference will be attended by at least twenty philosophers from different regions of Russia.

The working languages of the Conference are Russian and English. The papers should be submitted either in Russian or English. The Organizing Committee will arrange the translation of the papers so that the participants could study them on that language which they read (in English or Russian). Such a procedure greatly facilitates the conduct of discussions and will make it possible without any delay to submit materials for publication in Russian (in series «Comparative Philosophy») and in English (in series, published by Council for Research in Values and Philosophy, Washington, D.C). Simultaneous interpreting is assumed for translation at the sessions (presentations, questions, answers and discussions).
